NO REFERENDUM IF GAS BILL GOES THRU

CONSTITUTIONAL MEASURE IS IMMEDIATELY EFFECTIVE

It is a New Direct Tax, and the Revenue From It Is Appropriated For State Highway Improvement and Maintenance.

The assembly voted Thursday in majority caucus, to pass the bill providing the tax, over the governor's veto. The possibility of failure to pass it is considered negligible.

No Referendum.

Threats of a referendum being asked on the gas tax cannot be carried out, it is contended, because of constitutional provisions which will make the measure immediately effective as a law, when it is passed by the assembly.

It is a new direct tax, and the revenue from it is appropriated for state highway improvement and maintenance. Under the constitution, attorneys have argued, this makes the bill immediately effective when finally passed, without the 90 day period which elapses before other measures become laws. It also eliminates the chance of a referendum, which automobile club organizations were planning to seek.

The gas and oil companies will impound the money collected by the increased charges they plan to exact for gasoline and be ready to meet demands for payment of tax. If no demand for payment is ever made they will be ahead whatever amount of money may have been collected.

The exact amount of increase will vary with the various companies, for a few days at least, until competitive methods determine a standard price. Some concerns may charge no extra price at all. In view of recent boosts in gasoline prices from about 18 cents to as high as 21, which alone is sufficient to pay the tax.

Tax Suits Possible.

If the tax commission refuses to collect the tax suits in mandamus, probably will be filed by backers of the Brown bill to compel its collection.

The measure probably will be the subject of extended litigation, since "holes" have been found in it by attorneys for automobile organizations that largely defeat its own ends, they contend.

AUTO THIEVES CAUGHT.

Joseph Barnes and W. O. Storts, colored, were placed under arrest this morning after a wild chase. The police department was notified by Chillicothe police to be on the lookout for a Packard car driven by two colored men. When the word reached here the machine had passed across Main street on its way to Columbus.

Officer McCrady rushed out and commandeered the machine of Turney Leist and with Mr. Leist gave chase. The thieves were not caught or overhauled until they reached the south end viaduct near Columbus. With the assistance of a deputy sheriff of Franklin county the two colored men were hand cuffed and were brought to this city and are now being held for the authorities at Huntington, West Virginia, where the machine was stolen.

tend. That its backers, representing the large rural constituency of the legislature, intend to force it into immediate operation to forestall any attempts to have it overthrown at the polls, is considered certain by the oil and gas interests and their plan to begin immediate collection they say, is one of self protection.

UNIVERSITY ECONOMIST CITES FIGURES

Advises Dairymen to Watch Exports in Butter Production.

Ohio dairymen can afford to watch with increased respect export reports from foreign nations this summer.

"The five principal exporting countries," explains R. F. Taber, extension specialist in rural economics at the Ohio State university "had in 1923 increased their exports of butter by 63 per cent since before the war. This increase is continuing.

"Canada, because of her nearness a strong potential competitor for our market, increased her exports 70 per cent in 1924 above those of 1923. New Zealand and Australia both show substantial increases for this past winter. "The big surpluses of a year ago were moved mainly because Germany which during 1923 bought very little butter came back and is now on her normal level of imports. But further increases in demand cannot be expected. For this reason people familiar with the situation are freely predicting that American dairymen will soon be feeling foreign competition for the American market."

Combined with this foreign situation, Mr. Taber points out, is the fact that pasture and cheap summer production are still to be heard from this year. During May, June, July and August about one half of the butter supply is produced.

The United States furthermore, reports an increase of 2.2 per cent in the number of dairy cows since January, 1924.

OHIO POSTOFFICES DID BIG BUSINESS

Washington, April 16.—The post-office department's "business barometer" registers a most favorable condition in Ohio. The department publishes every month a list of post-office receipts of "fifty industrial cities" scattered throughout the Union, with a comparison of receipts with the corresponding month in the last previous year. These cities have been chosen carefully with a view to the light which the statistics may show on the trend of business as reflected in the mails.

Springfield, Ohio, walked away from all other 49 industrial cities in the matter of increase during March this year as compared with March last year. The receipts of the Springfield postoffice for March, 1925, were $245,627.88, as compared with $150,877.81 during March, 1924, or in other words Springfield registered the phenomenal gain of 62.8 per cent in postal receipts. The receipts of the Springfield office for the month of March, 1924, showed a gain of 3.65 per cent over March, 1923.

Reason's Great Help

We ought to call in reason, like a good physician, as a help in misfortune.—Epictetus.

PERPETUATE EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS

President Coolidge Urges Support of University Memorials.

A hitherto unpublished statement by President Coolidge dealing with university memorials appears in a book, "Great University Memorials," just published by the University of Chicago. The statement follows:

"One test of the civilization of any age is the regard which it has for the teachings of the past and the opinion of posterity. The Greeks and Beatrice, Gothic cathedrals of the Dante spoke of the future in the lasting record of his great love for Beatrice. Gothic cathedrals of the middle ages still stand as reminders of abiding reverence. The Lincoln memorial is built for the centuries in the confident belief that generations and generations yet to come will prize it as a magnificent inspiration.

"The memorial idea is sound and is sure to grow as increasing opportunities present themselves. One of the most encouraging signs is the tendency today to look to institutions of higher education for memorial sites.

"No more fitting agencies for this purpose can be imagined. For universities are not repositories of the dead. They are more alive than the market place; their eyes are not only on the present, but on the past and the future. And the life within their walls is always young and acquisitive. "To place your name, by gift of bequest in the keeping of an active university is to be sure that the name and the project with which it is associated will continue down the centuries to quicken the minds and hearts of youths and thus make a permanent contribution to the welfare of humanity."

The book names John D. Rockefeller, William K. Vanderbilt, George F. Baker, Collis P. Huntington, Andrew Carnegie, P. A. B. Widener, Julius Rosenwald, James B. Drake, George Eastman and many others as typical of men whose memory has been perpetuated in college or university buildings.

"Within the last 10 years $500,000,000 has been bestowed as endowments upon American colleges and universities by men of wealth," it added. "Gifts by citizens of Chicago aggregating $16,000,000, many of whose names have been memorialized in buildings in the University of Chicago quadrangles, have been made since the founding of the university in 1892."

To Waterproof Shellac

A shellac finish on furniture or woodwork can be made fairly waterproof by the application of two or three coats of banana "oil." The last coat of shellac must be sand-papered as smooth as possible, and the liquid applied generously with a soft brush such as is used for varnish, says Popular Science Monthly. Each coat should be sand-papered lightly. Shellac treated in this way dries with a dull finish, but can be brightened by the application of furniture wax.

ERRORS BRING JOY TO STAMP COLLECTOR

Philatelist Ever on Watch for Printer's Mistakes.

Washington.—Consider the philatelist; how contrarily he works. Queer things have always been done in the name of collecting and all collectors have come to be regarded as having rules of their own by which they live and operate. But nothing they have done is more contrary to usual laws than the manner in which they have turned mistakes into fortunes. Since time was, people have professed to derive indirect profit from their mistakes, but the collector actually does reap material gain from errors.

Where do all the rare stamps come from? For what does the philatelist value them? There are the old stamps, of course, such as the postmaster stamps of the days before there were government issues, and there are stamps valuable for their sheer beauty of design and execution. There are the stamps of foreign countries which have had various political experiences such as the Alsace and Lorraine issues of 1870-1871. These are interesting as history.

Error Increases Value.

But an exceedingly important and, to the layman, surprising source of rare stamps is the error. In every issue of stamps errors occur and every error increases the value of a stamp for the philatelist, but the error he loves best and the one for which he watchfully waits whenever a new issue of stamps is due is the inverted error. The inverted error is always liable to occur when the issue is a bi-color job, which means that the sheets of stamps must be printed twice. There is the danger, from the standpoint of the philatelist, that in the second printing at least one sheet will be turned upside down and come out with an inverted center. The last time the philatelic world had a thrill of this kind was in 1918, when the bi-color aero stamp issue was printed.

A young private stamp collector picked up $15,000 for the error made in this issue. The collector was Mr. Robey of Washington, a jeweler whose hobby is philately. He had been watching for the appearance of the new issue and when it came he started out to buy a 24-cent aero stamp. Sure enough, in a little branch post office of Washington he discovered his error—a stamp with its airplane inverted. He bought the entire pane of a hundred stamps and then called the clerk's attention to the error. The issue was called in and a hunt made for other errors by the post office officials, but no more were found. The other three panes of the sheet of errors were discovered at the bureau.

Mr. Robey sold his block of stamps to Eugene Klein of Philadelphia for $15,000 and the dealer in turn sold them to E. H. R. Green, son of Hetty Green, for $20,000. Mr. Green broke the block, kept some for his own collection and put the others on sale on the regular market. They bring $750 each now and the stamp is said to have a "good future." Which means, hold on to your 24-cent error if you have one.

The first inverted error on record was made in 1869 in the 15, the 24 and 30-cent values. Some of these got into the hands of collectors before they were found and called in. An unused copy of the 15-cent value was sold in New York recently for $4,100, and an unused 30-cent value fetched $3,500. Stamps, like eggs, are valuable in proportion as they are scarce.

In the 1901 Pan-American set there were inverted errors in the 1, 2 and 4-cent values. These have never demanded prices in four figures, but they disappear into collections not on the market.

The 5-Cent Red Error.

The most sensational error that has ever been made in the United States was the famous "5-cent red error" of 1915. Its value is not yet great because it had such a wide distribution before it was called in. The price ranges from $40 to $14, according to whether the stamp has ten perforations or eleven, or no perforations at all. The 5-cent error is interesting on account of the way in which the mistake came about.

When the plates were ready for printing a proof was pulled and submitted to the inspector for approval. On proof of plate 7942, the inspector marked three impressions as lighter in tone than the others. These three were ordered removed from the plate and new impressions made. When the printer called for the roller to make these new impressions he received by mistake the roller for the 5-cent value, which greatly resembles the 2-cent roller upside down.

Nobody caught the mistake and the plate was approved and put to press. From March 7 until May 2 the sale of the issue went on before the error was discovered.

It is not to be supposed that only four errors have been made since 1869. Errors are being made all the time. Errors of inks and colors and errors in perforating. Down at the bureau of engraving and printing they confess to many mistakes in every printing but to the expectant, eager philatelist it seems a long time between errors.

Aid Greenhouse Men in War on Insects

Much Progress Has Been Made During Last Year.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Of especial interest to greenhouse men are the studies of greenhouse insects and problems of greenhouse fumigation conducted by the bureau of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture. Distinct progress has been made in this field during the past year. Among some of the insects on which work has been done may be mentioned the larger bulb fly, the cyclamen mite, the Cattleya fly, and the tip moth of pine seedlings.

Life history studies of the larger bulb fly have been started, and experiments conducted in the disinfection of bulbs from the insect. The larvae appear to be very resistant to vacuum fumigation with carbon disulphide at the rate of 4 and 10 pounds per 1,000 cubic feet of space. Control experiments intended to test the efficacy of nicotine, sulphur, oil emulsions, soap sprays, pyrethrum, hydrocyanic acid gas, carbon disulphide, etc., against the cyclamen mite have been begun. Fumigation against the Cattleya fly with hydrocyanic acid gas has not thus far proved of value in any of its stages, and other control methods are being studied.

Investigation in the general field of fumigation have included the testing of various dosages and exposures on a variety of plants, such as orchids and various bulbs. The killing power of calcium cyanide for certain greenhouse aphids compares favorably with equivalent dosages of sodium cyanide. Under greenhouse conditions it was found that overnight fumigation at the rate of 1/4 ounce of calcium cyanide to 1,000 cubic feet of space gave 100 per cent kill for three species of aphids. A higher proportion, combined with high humidity, caused severe burning of many varieties of plants.

Pennsylvania Improves Cattle Feeding Methods

Cattle feeding methods in the Lancaster district have been changed completely in the past ten years because of the results obtained in steer feeding at the Pennsylvania State college, states Dr. John M. Thomas, president of the college, in a report on "The Service of the Pennsylvania State College to the Commonwealth."

"The old method has been changed to the modern method as developed at the 'experiment station' says President Thomas. 'According to the best available information, only 10 per cent of the cattle feeders in the Lancaster district had silos on their farms in 1914. Approximately 80 per cent of all the cattle feeders in that district are now using silos in their steer feeding work. This change in the method of feeding has resulted in more economical production and has meant many thousands of dollars to the cattle feeders of Pennsylvania.

"The experimental work in maintaining a beef-feeding herd has been a stimulus for the establishment of more such herds in Pennsylvania, the number of which is constantly increasing."

Value of Silage Varies With the Price of Corn

Silage made from corn that will yield 50 bushels per acre is worth from $6 to $6.50 per ton, depending when the corn was put into the silo. Corn that is put into the silo when it is denting and all the leaves are green will weigh more than it will when it is more nearly ripe and some of the husks and leaves have begun to dry.

The value of a ton of silage always varies with the price of corn per bushel and also upon the quality of the corn. When corn is put into the silo before it is in the glazing stage, it is not worth as much as it would have been if it were more mature.

Perhaps the farm home garden is often a failure because it is not taken seriously enough.

Though sunlight costs nothing, it is about the most valuable thing you can give your chicks.

If you fail to beautify your premises with flowers and shrubbery, you cheat yourself and your visitors.

In starting a new crop year it is well to remember that the incentive to agriculture is not chiefly profit but the satisfying of the human interest in creative production.

All crops except timothy give better yields when they are grown in rotation than when grown in continuous culture. experiments at the New State College of Agriculture.

Painted Designs on Dress Fabrics

Paris Designer Achieves Bizarre Effects in Chic Spring Models.

Renee specializes in painted kasha and jersey cloth with cubist and geometrical designs in her new spring models. She features satin and crepe de chine blouses of every length, says a Paris correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune, that are painted with blocks like the wooden toy bricks a child plays with, and have, in addition, a group of animals, such as a pair of monkeys or elephants, painted on one side. These are difficult to describe with any hope of conveying the right impression, but they are bizarre and attractive.

The main color of Renee's collection is gray. She uses it in suitings and covert coatings for tailor-mades and coats, some short and some three-quarter length. She also uses much gray jersey cloth and kasha, painted in odd designs, but always in the most discreet shadings. Belge, too, is prominent, as are the lovely shades of brown, of which Renee has always been so fond. She uses black, bottle and Robin Hood green, almond green, bois de rose, navy blue and a light sapphire, rose color, red and apricot.

Another innovation of Renee's this season is her return to the use of taffetas, which have not seen the light of day since 1915. She has the most delightful model in bottle green reps, the coat fastening with a bow at the side of the neck, being heavily strapped with green taffeta. The dress that accompanies it is of taffeta, fairly full as far as the skirt is concerned and trimmed with some strapping of the reps, including a narrow panel down the center front that is trimmed with a row of small buttons to match.

There is a charming taffeta tailor-made in navy blue, with a white satin blouse, and one of the most admired models is of black taffeta, with a three-quarter-length sack coat trimmed with a wide border of narrow soutache braid, alternating black and brown, the same appearing at the hem of the black taffeta dress.

Many small buttons are used as trimming; also much strapping, applique of another material and fine inlet work, often of taffeta on reps or some other fabric. Braid, too, is used, and there is an attractive straight black gown, trimmed from the underarm level to the hem with horizontal groups of four or five narrow rows alternating with one wide band of black cire braid.

New Paris Silhouette in Chartreuse Satin

The model shows one of the latest Paris fashions. It is a Lanvin idea in chartreuse satin with an entirely new silhouette, pearl cabochon trimming.

White Draws Fashion's Approval for Season

At every exhibition of fashions for spring, white stands out conspicuously as the shade destined for a pronounced vogue. Sport dresses, afternoon frocks, evening gowns and coats and wraps for every occasion are developed in white materials of varied textures. The ribbed silks like faille and bengaline are frequently employed in the fashioning of smart little one and two-piece frocks.

Kasha, cashmere, flannel and fabrics of similar character are used for coats, while the loveliest evening gowns are developed in lustrous satin finished crepe, faille and chiffon.

Recently an exclusive specialty shop emphasized in a most interesting display of new models the importance of white evening frocks, enlivened with touches of gold in the form of delicate embroidery in metal threads, fine beading, a bit of gold lace or a piping of gold ribbon.

The simple sports frocks are in many instances of white or the faint pastel shades.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

History of Lace

Lace was first made in the Sixteenth century. Before that time the term lace described such articles as cords, narrow braids of plaited and twisted threads, used not only to fasten shoes, sleeves and corsets together, but also in a decorative manner to braid the hair and to wind around hats. Later it was used as a trimming for costumes.

Might in the Jungle

The lion, noted as being the noblest of the jungle's beasts, is, of course, a mighty hunter. His ferocity is proverbial. All animals as well as man become its victims. The African buffalo, however, is often its master, and elephants sometimes are able to overpower both lions and all members of the tiger family.

CIRCLEVILLE IS REMEMBERED IN THE WILL OF

Logan G. McPherson Former Citizen—He Also Makes Bequests to Libraries.

A chair once owned by Washington Irving was bequeathed to the New York Public Library in the will of Logan G. McPherson, authority on railway economics, filed for probate Thursday in New York City. Mr. McPherson died March 23.

In the original will, executed in 1919 the chair was left to the Author's club of which Mr. McPherson was a member, but in a codicil made on January 31, 1923, the disposition was revoked and the chair was left to the library. No reason was given for the change.

Mr. McPherson's estate, which was filed as being "more than $10,000" was divided among relatives living in Pittsburgh. A bequest of $10,000 was given to Miss Maria Lewis King, of Edgeworth, Pennsylvania, in recognition of a "lifelong friendship," while smaller bequests were given to other friends.

Certain of his personal effects were willed to the public libraries in Circleville, Ohio, and Decatur, Illinois.

Logan Grant McPherson was a son of Daniel Workman and Francis Kinneer McPherson. The family resided in the house on East High street now occupied by Miss Daisy Murray.

The deceased, who was a former government official left an estate of $200,000. Besides the bequests mentioned above he left $10,000 to his half sister, Mrs. Maria Hickman Weststaff, of Niles, this state, who is better remembered here as Maud Nightengale.

Two Types of Artists

The great artist is forever enlarging the scope of human art and embracing things with love that have never known art before. He can only do that by making them beautiful, and the would-be artist who brings into what he calls his art things that are ugly and remain just as ugly after he has touched them is nothing in the world.—Havelock Ellis.

The Brute Again

"This poet has written some beautiful lines to 'The Silent Night,'" remarked Mrs. Grouch, looking up from a book of poems she was reading. "Suppose he wrote them after his wife had gone home to visit her folks for a while," growled her husband.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

At the North Pole

The North pole, recognized as the northern extremity of the earth, is in the midst of a hollow which holds no land in the neighborhood of the pole itself. The most northerly lands possess animal life—musk-ox, reindeer, polar bear, wolf, fox, ermine, land birds, as well as insect life, and during a few short weeks in summer, brilliant flowers. Human life is found within some 700 miles of the North pole.

Arizona

Authorities differ as to the meaning of the name "Arizona." Some say the name is derived from the Spanish words "arida zona," or arid zone. Others maintain that the word comes from "arizuma," meaning "silver-bearing."

AMUSEMENTS

Comedy, drama, Viola Dana, and girls, girls, girls! That's the description of the Metro-Goldwyn star's latest picture, "The Beauty Prize" which opened last night at the Met theater, and a delightfully entertaining picture it is, too!

Miss Dana appears as a New York manicurist who wins the national beauty title of "Miss America" and then gives away the $2,000 prize money she needs so badly. The star is popular than ever, and certainly looks as if she could win any beauty contest anywhere. Pat O'Malley is splendid as the hero.

Between the scenes showing the contest, with a bunch of pretty girls competing and the really excellent story by Nina Wilcox Putnam, last night's audience manifested in no uncertain terms that "The Beauty Prize" can well be called "perfect entertainment."

BURNING OUR SCHOOLS

During the first six months of 1924 there were over one hundred school-house fires in the U. S. where the damage exceeded $10,000; in fact, it averaged $62,000. This means that 3.6 per cent of our entire fire waste occurred in buildings housing our children, a large portion of the year.

Such a record is little less than criminal, for many times there is a sacrifice of life as well as property. We take better care of our prisoners! From 1916 to 1920 there were reported to the National Board of Fire Underwriters 9,187 school-house fires.

One hundred and seventy-five died at Collingswood, 76 at Cleveland, S. C., 21 at Peabody, Mass., and 22 at Los Angeles.

Many of our modern schools have all of the hazards of a small town, for they contain restaurants, machine shops, garages, laundries, chemical laboratories, woodworking, forging, domestic science, electrical shops, and others.

It is not uncommon for state fire prevention inspectors to find as high as 50 fire or safety hazards in one school! No wonder they burn!

White House Etiquette

James Monroe consulted his cabinet about the procedure involved in the reception of the diplomatic corps at the Presidential New Year's greeting, and it was decided that for the reception on January 1, 1818, the members of the diplomatic corps should be received at 11:30, and the general public from twelve to three o'clock. This was the first time that a fixed time was arranged.

PLEAD GUILTY.

Gary, Ind., April 16.—(U. P.)—A plea of guilty was expected by police today when Mrs. Anna Cunningham, 50, is arraigned on the charge of murder, following her confession last midnight to giving poison to four of her children, three of whom died.

The only motive behind the killings, Mrs. Cunningham said was a desire to join her husband in death and love of the children.

Mrs. Cunningham denied having given poison to her husband and to Harry, the eldest son. They died natural deaths, she said.

David, the fourth son, she fed arsenic, is in a Chicago hospital, fighting for life. The husband and four children died within a period of six years.

May, 18-year-old flapper daughter, escaped poisoning because Mrs. Cunningham loved her the least.

Mrs. Cunningham said she took poison her self but the only result was severe illness.

"I wanted to join my husband, who died in 1918," Mrs. Cunningham told Sheriff Ben Strong quite dispassionately. "And when I decided to die I wanted to take along with me the child I loved best.

"I never did give poison to Pa—he just died. I didn't give poison to Harry either. He was my favorite son. He was the one I gave part of the money from the farm to buy an automobile. After Harry and Pa were gone my home seemed broken up.

"I gave poison to Isabelle. Isabelle was the first to go. I gave poison to Isabelle on bread and butter and gave it to myself just as much. She was sick a long time.

"Harry died a year later. Maybe I would have sent him on the way if it hadn't been that God took him without help from me. He died naturally and that's the truth."

OHIO WOOL PRODUCTION

Columbus, April 16.—More Ohio produced wool will go to market co-operatively this year than has for several years, it is indicated by reports received at the warehouse of the Ohio Wool Growers Cooperative Association at Columbus. Agreements of producers for sale through the association are already approaching the 2,000,000 pound mark, or more than double the amount included in similar agreements received up to this time last season.

The amount of wool covered by the marketing agreements at Columbus headquarters does not represent nearly all that members have agreed to consign, according to officials of the association.

JAMES EADS HOW

James Eads How, known the world over as the "millionaire hobo," was quietly married the other day to Ingeborg J. Sorensen, formerly his secretary, at the home of the bride's aunt in Chicago. Mr. How, although possessed of a fortune of between $750,000 and $1,000,000, has spent the major portion of his life in attempts to better the conditions of the poor, and has himself lived as a "hobo."

To Every Man His Part

We do not ask that his truth may conquer, because it cannot but conquer; its conquest is assured from the very foundation of the world. But we do ask that we may have a part in this great victory.—Julia Ward Howe.

STARTS OLD CLOCK SILENT 200 YEARS

Timepiece Made Up of More Than 500 Parts Was Built By John Harrison.

London, Eng., April 16.—The achievement of an officer of the British Admiralty Hydrographic Department in restarting an ancient clock which had been unused for nearly 200 years, sheds light on a long-forgotten romance.

The clock was the invention of John Harrison, the self-taught son of a Yorkshire carpenter, and it gained for him the government prize of $100,000 offered for a ship's chronometer which would accurately indicate longitude.

Comprising more than 500 parts, this remarkable clock weighs more than 100 pounds, and took two years to construct. Actually, it is a clock within a clock, the lesser clock keeping time for four minutes only, when it is automatically rewound by the bigger clock, which itself requires to be wound once daily.

Another clock by Harrison, an eight-day wooden timepiece, is still working in the patent museum at South Kensington.

AGNES McDONALD OF AMANDA DIES FROM INFLUENZA

Other surviving relatives are a brother Robert of near Clearport, and two step-brothers, Harry McDonald, of Amanda, and Seth McDonald, of near Amanda. OBITUARIES

JOHN F. DIEHL.

John F. Diehl, of North Brownell street, passed away at his home, Wednesday, April 15, at 12:05 a. m. following an illness of two weeks with a complication of diseases. He was born in Perry county, Ohio, October 25, 1844, the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Diehl. He was a Civil war veteran having served in Company I, of the 19th infantry regiment. Mr. Diehl was a member of the U. B. Church.

He leaves to mourn their loss, his wife and nine children, W. M. Diehl, of Johnstown, O.; L. C. Diehl, of Magnetic Springs; Mrs. G. L. Smith, of Columbus; Mrs. C. W. GUESSING MAY PROVE COSTLY TO FARMERS

Testing Corn is Suggested by Crop Men. Test Your Seed Before Planting.

Last call for Ohio farmers to make sure that their seed corn will germinate 90 per cent or better this spring, has been issued by farm corps extension specialists at the Ohio State university in a special communication to all Ohio county agents.

Summary of 250 reports submitted by teachers of vocational agriculture in 23 counties, mostly in northern and western Ohio, shows that only where seed corn was stored in the house or carefully strung up in a protected shed last fall, has it retained high viability. Of corn stored in cribs or in the shock through the winter, the reports indicate only from 56 to 78 per cent is worth planting.

Seed corn selected last September or October, however, and well stored during the winter is averaging better than 99 per cent in germination tests. Seed corn not selected until last month is averaging between 50 and 60 per cent germination.

"The present situation" concludes one of the crops specialists, J. S. Cutler, "calls for prompt action in encouraging the farmers of Ohio to find out the actual condition of their seed corn. Poor seed means a thin stand and a reduced crop. Much supposedly good seed has given a low germination test. The corn field makes an expensive tester. The knowledge that a lot of seed corn will grow is worth the added effort in testing and culling. Guessing may prove costly."

FORD WEEKLY PURCHASE PLAN SUCCESSFUL

One of the most interesting features of the March sales reports of the Ford Motor company, as given out at the company offices in Detroit, is the large number of people who enrolled to purchase cars under the easy method of the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan.

The reports show that plan enrollments averaged more than 1,000 a day for the month, the total for the twenty-six working days of March being 26,826. This is a gain of about 300 a day over the enrollment figures for the last few days of February.

Aside from the large enrollments under the plan, sales for March were 173,182 Ford cars and trucks. Of this number domestic retail deliveries totaled 153,923, an increase of 41,401 over February, indicating improving conditions everywhere throughout the country. Reports covering dealers requirements for the present month also show the demand for cars and trucks rapidly moving upward.

Another healthy condition, at least so far as agricultural interests are concerned, is reflected in the domestic retail sales of 9,225 Fordson tractors during March. This is an increase of 3,311 more than were delivered in February. Domestic and foreign sales of Fordsons reached a total of 10,803 in March.

And so I find it well to come For deeper rest to this still room; For here the habit of the soul Feels less the outer world's control. And from the silence multiplied By these still forms on every side The world that time and sense has known Falls off and leaves us God alone."

In the good old days, when a wagon broke down in the road we used to gather around it and put in several hours apiece inquiring how the contraptions occurred, sympathizing with the owner of the vehicle, and recalling and describing in the most minute detail sundry incidents of similar character which had transpired in the past. But nowadays when a motorcar blows out a tire we go right on.—Eh-yah!—Kansas City Star.

The Doctor's Dilemma

By ELLA SAUNDERS

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

"THAT'S Doctor Crandall, and the best doctor anywhere around these parts. There's quite a story about him—pretty, I call it. Four years ago, almost to this day, he was standing up before the altar in that church, waiting for Miss Rogers to come and be made his wife. Everything was ready. The parson was waiting and the congregation was waiting, and all the women were getting ready to cry.

"It was Miss Edna Rogers, the pretty one, and she'd been her mother's slave all her life. The other sisters had married, but Miss Edna stayed at home, working for the old woman and toiling herself to death. Then Doctor Crandall came along and—well, the old mother didn't like it. But she had to take it.

"Just as the bride and her mother were coming to the church Ed Jones came running up the aisle. He paid no attention to the black looks that were given him.

"Old Mrs. Ephraim had a hemorrhage from the lungs and is bleeding to death," he shouted so loud that everybody could hear.

"Doctor Crandall took one look at Ed and the next minute he was hurrying down the aisle in his wake.

"The congregation gasped. The parson tried to say something and couldn't. But one person spoke, for Edna and her mother appeared just then at the church door.

"Where are you going, James?" asked the bride, very distinct and clear.

"I've been called to a case," Crandall faltered. It was a stupid way to begin.

"If you go, James, you—you needn't come back," said Edna, in tones which were heard all through the church.

"Edna, it's old Mrs. Ephraim. She's had a hemorrhage and she's bleeding to death—"

"Don't you let yourself be treated that way, Edna," said the old harridan of a mother.

"Edna, don't you see?" pleaded Crandall. "I've got to go—I can't leave her to die."

"That's quite enough. Mother," said the girl, "let us go home. Let us go home, I say," she added, stamping her foot.

"Crandall cast one last look at her, but he never wavered. He jumped into his car and started for old Mrs. Ephraim's house.

"Now comes the bitter part of it. When he got there he found there was no hemorrhage at all. She'd just been spitting a little more blood than usual. He had wrecked his happiness for an old woman's imagination.

"Everyone in the place pitied him. After that he went about his tasks like a man in a dream. He tried once or twice to make it up with Edna, but she was too proud and bitter, and her mother was always stiffening her.

"Doctor Bowles is the only other doctor in town. He was away on a holiday when old Mrs. Rogers had her stroke. There was no one to call in but Doctor Crandall. It was Edna who went to his house and summoned him.

"He went back with her, and he did all he could, but the old woman couldn't live. On the night of her death the doctor and Edna were standing by her bedside.

"Nothing had been said about the tragedy, and Crandall knew that Edna was still implacable. Would she ever relent? He knew her pride, a sort of obstinacy that delighted in torturing itself.

"The dying woman opened her eyes, but she did not recognize either of them. A chuckle came from her withered lips.

"You did well, Amy Ephraim," she whispered. "I'll never forget it, never. And here's another twenty dollars for you. It's worth that, to keep Edna with me."

"I reckon that's finished Crandall. I've nothing against him as a man, but I wasn't going to be left alone in my old age, Amy. I wish I'd seen his face when he found you hadn't got a hemorrhage at all. But we certainly fixed him, for I knew Edna's pride."

"She chuckled hideously again, and then subsided. And then, as they stood by the bedside of the dying woman, Crandall felt Edna's hand slipped into his. Death and love—well, that's the way the world goes. I guess there isn't a happier pair in Stratton."

Another Rip Van Winkle.

The hero of an old German tradition, whose experiences—almost identical with those of Rip Van Winkle—are related in Otmar's "Volcks-Sagen." He is represented as a goatherd from Sittendorf who, while leading his flock to pasture, is lured by a young man to a deep dell surrounded by crags, where he finds twelve mysterious personages playing at bowls, but without uttering a word. Having drunk some wine from a can near at hand he is overpowered with sleep and finally awakens only to find everything about him changed. After making his way to the village near at hand he learns to his consternation that he has been asleep for twenty years.

A Strange Man.

White—Have you heard the bank's cashier had disappeared and not a penny is missing?
Gray—Yes. He always was a most peculiar and eccentric fellow.—London Answers.

Origin of Familiar Words

Some of our words owe their present form to the mistakes of our forefathers. A belfry, which originally had nothing to do with a bell, is correctly a belfry, i. e., a watch tower. A certain kind of apple used to be known as a costard, and a dealer in this fruit as a costardmonger, and later on as a costermonger. Similarly, a grocer was originally an engrosser, or a dealer in gross, while a butcher was a bocher or killer of goats.—London Mail.

"Sweeping" the Clouds

The fabled performance of the old woman of the nursery rhyme who "swept" the cobwebs out of the sky has a scientific parallel in the ability of aviators under some conditions to brush small clouds out of the sky by flying through them rapidly, says London Tit-Bits. A fair-sized summer cumulus or fair-weather cloud may sometimes be dispersed by about twenty flights through it.

Removing Tattoo Marks

Although tattoo marks generally are asserted to be indelible if produced by the insertion of some carbonaceous matter, it is said they will disappear if first well rubbed with a salve of pure acetic acid and lard, then with a solution of potash and finally with a solution of hydrochloric acid. It would be advisable to consult a skin specialist.

DANCING

Jitney dances at the C. A. C. every Saturday evening from 8 to 12.

Sundog

When other combinations of reflections from snow crystals occur so as to double or treble the brightness of spots in the parhelic circle is the reflection of the sunlight forming a band of white light around the horizon at the apparent angular altitude of the sun and usually passing through it, it is known as a sundog.

Wooden Trays

Wooden trays, though labor-saving in the sense that they need no cleaning, are often marred by dishes and plates that are carried upon them. A tray marked in this way may be restored by gentle rubbing with warm linseed oil. Rub the oil in with a piece of cotton wool or some other equally absorbent material.

ARAB WOMEN GO TO WAR WITH HUSBANDS

Enemy Not Allowed To Kill Females—Warrior Safe Behind Woman In Battle.

Bagdad, April 16.—Arab women go to war with their men, but they do not fight and are not allowed to share in the plunder. Also, neither may they be slain except by accident. Should this happen a heavy fine is exacted, of which about a third goes to the husband, the rest to her own relatives.

Women in tribal wars often preceded the army as spies upon the enemy, and a man would stand behind his wife and shoot over her shoulder or between her feet, secure that retaliation would not be attempted.

A pleasanter aspect of the same immunity is that food and drink, asked by the women of the enemy, was never refused, and it is said that they were often employed to carry tobacco between the rival camps as a mutual friendly attention.

Another interesting point in Arab life with regard to women is that a man on his way to execution was safe from punishment if he could lay hold on the skirts of a woman. The writer has seen criminals blindfolded to prevent them from exercising this privilege.

"A cape is a piece of land extending into the water."
"That's right. Now, Jimmy, define a gulf."
"A gulf is a piece of water extending into the land."
"Good. Hector," to a small, eager-looking little chap, "can you tell me what a mountain is?"
"A mountain," responded Hector, "is a piece of land extending into the air."

Not Well Trained

Peggy had been to the circus and mother thought to impress a lesson. "When dogs, and ponies, and monkeys obey so well, don't you think a little girl ought to obey even more quickly?" she said.
"So I should, mummy," was the instant reply. "If I'd been as well trained as they have."

Where She Looked

"Darling, that encyclopedia you bought is no good at all."
"Why, whatever's wrong with it?"
"This morning I wanted to find out why swallows migrate in winter."
"And you couldn't find it? Where did you look for it?"
"I looked under 'why,' and I couldn't even find the word there at all."

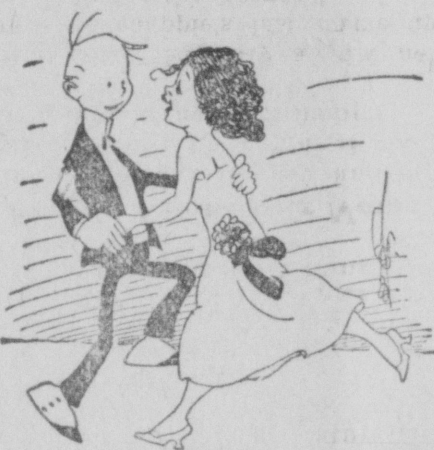

Let Others Worry

Anxious Wife—Able, have you done anything about that horrible Black Hand letter?
Able—Oh, ain't I, though. I turned it over to my insurance company. They got $20,000 tied up in me; let them worry.—Moorestown Star.

Desperate Case

Finally Knows His Name

"In the old days a man had to be engaged before he ventured to address a lady by her first name."
"Well?"
"But now frequently a girl never knows the chappie's last name until they apply for the license."

Willie—I'm glad to hear that—sister has never given me more'n a quarter, you know.
